

GARDAVSKY IS PRESIDENT

Cartier, Richardson
Sheldon, Pierce, Elected

Over Half
Student Body
Exercise Vote

By GARRY PATTERSON
McGill students yesterday elected Boris Gardavsky to the top post of president of the Student's Society. He defeated Isadore Rosenfeld in one of the most hotly-contested campus contests on record by a decisive vote of 1882 to 1446. Of the 6120 eligible voters on the campus, 65 per cent voted in this important contest. This represents a considerable increase over last year's elections participation at which less than half the student body voted. The breakdown for this contest for the larger faculties was as follows: Gardavsky received 417 votes in Arts, Science 188, Commerce 160, Dawson 309, Engineering 414, while his opponent votes were split as follows: Arts 344, Science 128, Commerce 140, Dawson 183, Engineering 98. Other votes were split up amongst the smaller faculties.

Jim Cartier at press time was ahead of his opponents in the race for the presidency of the McGill Union. However, as a recount had been demanded and at the Daily deadline this had not been finished, there are no definite results. Peers demanded a recount when it was discovered that there was a difference of 33 votes on the first count between him and Cartier.

The newly-elected president of the Women's Union is Peggy Pierce who defeated her opponent Joanfects but simply spend a part of O'Connell by a count of 412 votes to 342. The president of the M. W. S. A. A. is Mary Richardson who defeated Roberta Tyler by 65 votes. The voting was 318 for Mary Richardson and 315 for Roberta Tyler.

Also elected was Ann Wyman who won the post of Secretary of the Women's Union by a majority of 94 votes over her nearest rival, Claire Deschamps. Miss Wyman received 329 votes, Claire Deschamps 235, and Becky Fooks 136.

Douglas Simpson defeated Donald Wallace by a vote of 208 to 118, to become president of the Commerce Undergraduate Society. The post of treasurer of the Society was filled by Hugh Batchelor. He defeated the only other contestant, Wake Wynn by a vote of 201 to 105. Of the 339 Commerce students who voted, first and second year students each provided 85 votes. 94 came from third year and 75 from fourth year to provide an overall vote of over 50 per cent of eligible voters.

Skip Sheldon was elected as the student representative to the Athletic Board. He defeated Ham Quain by a close vote of 1266 to 1019.

The posts open in the Faculty of Arts and Science were that of second Vice-President and Athletics representative. They were filled by Chuck Taylor and Mike Brodeur respectively.

Chuck Taylor defeated his opponent Cy Rosen by a vote of 630 to 407 while in a four way contest Brodeur defeated McGhee, Amaron, and Stephen by counts 338 to 184, 137 and 135 respectively.

In the Faculty breakdown, Taylor polled 161 in Science and 402 in Arts, while Brodeur received 84 in Science and 238 in Arts.

The McGill Debating Union also announced its results last night. President is Mel Rothman, while the vice-presidents are Henry Nevard and Hazel O'Brien. Recording secretary is Leticia Ariola and Corresponding secretary is Chuck Taylor. The treasurer is Arthur Leznoff

Scribe 'Bug-eyed' On Visit To Institute of Parasitology

By RUBIN FELDMAN
Have you ever heard of the Apophallus brevis? Or, how would you like to meet the Gyrodactylus? Well, out at the Institute of Parasitology at Macdonald College, there are these and many more parasites being grown and experimented on. The Apophallus brevis is a worm-like parasite which spends part of its time as the black spot of the speckled trout, while the Gyrodactylus is the only flatworm which gives birth to its own grandchildren — by having the grandchildren's eggs in the larvae of the first eggs.

We saw this and many experiments when we visited the institute, directed by Dr. Thomas W. M. Cameron, research professor of parasitology at McGill. There are five basic projects in operation at the institute. Two of these are fundamental. They come under the headings of what happens to a parasite while inside the body, and what happens to it when it is outside. Anaerobic conditions for the sake of Arts students — conditions in the absence of air — are being experimented on in the part dealing with what happens in the body. The action of different chemical catalysts called enzymes are tested on how they affect these parasites in such animals as rabbits and chickens.

The other three of the basic projects include the study of the parasites of man in Canada, the study of parasites of Canadian domestic animals, and the study of parasites of Canadian fish and wild animals. Many of the parasites which are being studied have no harmful effects but simply spend a part of

Sidelights on New & Old Editorial Boards

John Scott, whose appointment as the new editor-in-chief of The Daily was announced at the paper's banquet last night, moved up from reporter to the top job in two years. At the end of his first year with The Daily last March he was promoted to assistant news editor after having served as reporter and desk editor.

Last summer Scott worked as a reporter with The Sherbrooke Daily Record where he covered everything from two-headed chickens to the youngster lost near Eastman.

Retiring editor-in-chief Clyde Kennedy came to McGill in 1948 and became successively reporter, desk editor and managing editor before being named editor-in-chief in March 1949. For two years he was editor-in-chief of The Carleton, student newspaper at Carleton College, Ottawa, and was formerly on the staff of city newspapers in Ottawa and British Columbia. He is in fourth year science.

Jim Robb, 19-year-old third year Arts student, takes over the managing editor's post after three years with the Daily sports staff. He started as a reporter in 1947 and was moved up to assistant sports editor last March. His great uncle was Finance Minister in the Canadian government. Robb will handle The Daily's budget as well as assist the editor-in-chief with editorial policy and the general operation of the paper. His home is in Huntingdon, Quebec.

Hy Pearl, first year medical student and retiring managing editor, has been with The Daily four years. He started on the Dawson staff of the paper and joined the sports staff when he moved in to the Montreal campus. His home is in Granby, Quebec.

Promotions, Awards Are Announced

John McPherson Scott, 20-year-old second-year Arts student, has been appointed editor-in-chief of The McGill Daily, to succeed Clyde Kennedy, the retiring managing board announced last night.

Scott is the son of Prof. R. B. V. Scott of the Faculty of Divinity. This is his second year on The Daily and he has been Associate News Editor since shortly before Christmas.

Other members of the new managing board are Jim Robb, who succeeds Hy Pearl as managing editor; and Eddie Kingstone, who succeeds Arnold Lowery as news editor. Robb has been assistant sports editor this past year and Kingstone has been assistant news editor.

Marcel Baltzan will serve a second year as sports editor and Emily Hick will succeed Leonard Ashley as feature editor.

The other staffers are as follows:

Presidential Review Notes Accomplishments of Society

Great satisfaction with the work of the Students' Society during the past year was expressed in a statement by Collin McCallum, retiring president. The following is the text of his statement:

"Besides the excellent results produced by the regular organizations of the Society, the following may be numbered amongst the achievements of the year. The installation of a soda fountain in the Union, the comprehensive Freshman Reception program carried on in the fall, the arrangements completed with the University for the opening of a University Bookstore next October.

"Much progress has been made towards closer co-operation with Macdonald College and the Graduate Society, the banquets of the S.E.C. have been amalgamated, a McGill sweater for all male students has been introduced, the Dawson deficit has been liquidated and the Universal Society Fee has been increased in order to give every student the opportunity of participating in whatever activity he or she desires.

"The groundwork has been laid for some changes in the constitution of the Students' Society which, I believe, will strengthen the Society. The co-operation of the University is being sought to investigate the possibilities of installing two 35mm. projectors in Moysse Hall so that the best historical and educational films may be brought to McGill.

The problem of city transportation to and from the University and the alleviation of the hazards involved in crossing Sherbrooke St. at the Roddick Gates during the rush hours has again been taken up with the Tramways and City authorities.

Many of you have given a great deal of time and energy towards getting these things done. I should like to congratulate you on behalf of the Students' Society and to thank you for the grand co-operation and assistance you have given me during the past year.

It should be brought to your attention that one of the best friends the Society has is the Principal. During the year, both he and the officials of the University have shown the keenest, although detached, interest in the affairs and well-being of the Society. They have given much time and consideration to those of us who have represented the student body.

To all those returning next year, I wish the best of luck. I hope that you will give next year's president the backing that you have given me.

To the graduates of this year, the best of everything for the future. See you at Convocation!

Collin McCallum, President, Students' Society.

CONTINUAL CHALLENGE

goes through the same process of looking forward to the day when they can tell a good many people individually and collectively to take a journey in a downward direction at right angles to the surface of the earth. But always when the final issue rolls around they realize they are leaving the finest fraternity of the campus and after all, ninety percent of the "populace" has been most co-operative.

We have often been asked why we put so much time into a job that seems to bring a minimum of thanks. The answer, of course, is that the satisfactions outweigh the sacrifices and while we have been plagued in turn (and sometimes all at once) by various publicity seekers, self-appointed "experts" and the never-satisfied, we have also had a great amount of help and co-operation from the student body as a whole, the university administration, the Students Executive Council and many others.

We owe special thanks to Principal P. Cyril James who has been most understanding and helpful in many problems. We think it should be pointed out here that the administration has taken the attitude that the editors of The Daily must decide themselves what policy should be followed in the best interests of the university.

We have noted with keen interest that many recent election speeches have declared The Daily editors should be free to handle the editing of The Daily and the choosing of the succeeding Managing Board. Although not generally known, it is no secret that in past years there have been very serious attempts on the part of some members of the Students Executive Council

Every year the Managing Board of The Daily set to put in an editor-in-chief who would be a mouthpiece and a doormat for the particular individuals who yearned for self-glorification.

We have every confidence that the present council will allow The Daily editors to do the editing. The council has apparently taken that attitude since it came into office in the New Year. The student body, we think, should be alert against any council which takes any other attitude and should sack the whole lot if they do. It is particularly important, we know from experience, that the Students Executive Council be required to place any complaints against The Daily on public record. We frankly have no respect whatever for a Students Executive Council which criticized The Daily "in camera" and did not have the moral fibre to do it before the student body.

We owe special thanks, also, to Mrs. D. McMurray, the principal's secretary, who has taken considerable delight in helping us with the odd "beat." And our printers, The Gazette, have been extremely helpful with a "scoop-happy" crew, with the composing room staff being especially co-operative.

A loyal staff has worked hard and unselfishly, putting much longer hours into the production of The Daily than most people realize.

We leave The Daily in good hands with a younger but lighter (and therefore more mobile) Managing Board taking over. We hope they find, as we have, that the job of piloting The Daily is a continual challenge and a most satisfying one.

Paper Research Machinery

The electronic "dirt counter" being operated by two researchers is a device developed at the Canadian Pulp and Paper Research Institute and is used to test paper for impurities. Each dirt speck causes flashes of light, at right, which are registered in a special counter revealing the amount of impurity in paper.

Canada Benefits

McGill Contributes To Nation's Wealth

by bern pelletier

Many important research and instrument developing projects directly concerned with the pulp, paper and forestry industries in Canada are presently being undertaken by the Pulp and Paper Research Institute of Canada situated on McGill's lower campus next to University Street.

The research establishment's contribution in men, machines, and methods have helped to reduce costs, increase production, save raw materials and eliminate waste. Its range of interests covers every product derived from cellulose, the fibres of wood, and every subject pertaining thereto; from silviculture to printing, from building materials to transparent paper, and from textiles to explosives.

JOINTLY FINANCED

Jointly financed by McGill University, the federal government and the industry itself, the Institute is under the directorship of Dr. Otto Maass, chairman of the chemistry department, who also directs the work done in the physical chemistry division of the research enterprise.

In charge of the divisions under Dr. Maass are Dr. Boyd Campbell, technical research division; Dr. C. B. Purves, organic chemistry division; and Dr. A. M. Koroleff, director of woodlands research. The secretary - engineer of the technical section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, Douglas Jones, is also housed at the Institute and is available for consultation on industrial research problems.

"A double purpose of research work accomplished will have a bearing on the forest products for uses in the pulp and paper industry also, valuable training is given to the graduate students who will go out to work in the industry itself."

He explained that all three partners benefited from the experimental undertakings since both government and industry profited economically, while valuable academic interest is realized by the university.

Located on the upper stories of the building, are some of the instrument and chemical laboratories. An observer, upon entering such a room, is immediately confronted with a veritable forest of glass cylinders, flasks, rubber tubing and various devices for holding the working apparatus together. Technicians in the organic chemistry laboratory are continuing with researches pertaining to properties of wood fibre and the different chemical reactions it undergoes.

REFERENCE LIBRARY

A well-stocked reference library is available which carries a host of texts that treat, in detail, all aspects of the pulp and paper industry as well as chemistry and other allied subjects. This unit of the Institute operates on an inter-library basis loaning references to governmental or industrial organizations. In the matter of irreplaceable literature, photostatic copies are distributed to the interested parties. The library is staffed with a graduate from the library and is complete with a comprehensive filing index.

An interesting room on the third floor contains the electronic contrivances which have been developed and employed over a period of 15 years while studying the printability of paper. One instrument determine how paper surfaces will behave as a receptacle of different types of printing inks. Another appliance counts the dirt appearing on the paper. This is an electronic measuring device which registers the frequency of impurities in a sheet of paper. Other tests give a numerical measurement of the smoothness of paper surfaces.

A narrow, steep staircase leads up to the attic of the building where an instrument repair shop is situated. It contains a lathe, shaper, electric drills and several manual tools.

The freeness tester is one of the many instruments developed at the Institute. Freeness concerns the ability of water to drain away quickly from the wood pulp mixture; therefore, the tester helps to control the operating conditions in the production of pulp, and to ensure uniformity of its most important qualities. All other technological developments of like nature must be standardized with this tester. Although it represents an investment of thousands of dollars, the apparatus has already saved or brought in a revenue of millions.

A constant conditioning room has been constructed in the basement to regulate temperature and humidity. This is significant since different degrees of heat and moisture will affect various properties of the paper being tested.

In this department, instruments are contained which determine many of these characteristics, for example: the strength needed to tear the paper is gauged; another test includes measurement of the tensile strength by stretching; one mechanism counts the number of times a sheet can be folded before it is weakened, while yet another determines the point where a piece of paper will burst when clamped in a special holding arrangement and an expanding air-balloon is allowed to press against it.

The greater part of the basement holds the machine that transform the natural wood product into the finished good - paper. The equipment is a miniature of that used in industry. A good deal of this machinery comprises the mill which includes grinders, chippers, beaters and digesters.

Egbert says "Now, for my diploma in Practical Economics"

Egbert's diploma from "My Bank" may not be tied up in blue ribbon, but that little red pass book shows he's graduated with honours.

By opening his B of M savings account early in college life, Egbert put his finances on a business-like basis - adding "Practical Economics" to his curriculum. And the experience he's gained in money management will stand him in good stead in post-grad days.

Whether you're graduating this year or returning in the fall, drop in and talk over your future plans with your B of M manager. You'll find him a good friend - a wise financial counsellor. Remember, a good banking connection is a "must" for success in any profession or business.

Sixteen Redmen In Top Competition at Legion Track Meet

MOLLY CAMP
High scoring forward of the McGill senior girls' basketball team, who will see action in the championship tournament this coming week-end.

McGill has entered sixteen men in the Canadian Legion Track and Field Meet to be held next Monday at the Forum. This is the largest team coach Van Wagner has ever entered in the event.

The Redmen will be facing some topflight competition in the March 6 show. Such big names in the Track world as Mal Whitfield, Olympic and record holder in the 800 metres, Bob Macfarlane Canadian 440 record holder and champ, Curllis Stone of Penn. State, Dick Church of Syracuse U. and Fred Schoeffler of Tufts College. The first two will battle it out in the 500 yard classic, while the latter three are among the top five two milers on the North American Continent.

McGill's team will specialize in the relay events. Testing the men who are trying for the team to go to Hamilton a week later for competition in the Fred Wigle Trophy race. McGill's team will be chosen from Pete Robinson, Ken Wagner, Ian Coughlan, Gene Swanny, Skeet Dorland and Collier. These boys will run in the relays at the legion meet and possibly several of the individual events. Pete Robinson will renew his sprint rivalry with Western's Bob Pierce. Bob defeated Flying Pete in the Intercollegiate sprints at Western last fall.

The other big guns in the McGill line up will probably be Tink Kyte and Dave Blair in the High Jump and 17 year old Farrel Hyde in the junior two mile. Hyde has been called by Glen Cowan, who has been watching him train for the past few weeks, one of the most promising juvenile milers in Canada next to Rich Ferguson, whom he will meet in next Monday's race. McGill has a starry crew entered in the Senior two mile races. They include Gord Gilmour, Intermediate three mile champ and Bill Donnellon veteran distance runner from Texas. Filling out the McGill line up will be three Dawson boys, former MHS man Buddy Belhune, Godwin and Kormachuk.

Dix, Pat Griffiths, Wendy Cleugh, Joy McLeod and Chuckie-Christen.

Women Cagers Seek Collegiate Title Saturday

The Women's Senior Intercollegiate Basketball Championships get underway on Friday March 3, at the Sir Arthur Currie Gym. All four teams in the Intercollegiate Union will participate in a round-robin tournament. The University of Toronto are defending champions but McGill is all set to give them a real battle. Western and Queens will also be represented. Each club will play three games with the team having the best won-lost record taking the cup.

Admission to the games is free and the girls hope to see a big turnout which will cheer them on to the winning of the "Bronze Baby." Toronto now holds the trophy but McGill is out to get it if possible.

Two points will be awarded for each win and one for a tie. In the eventuality of a tie for the honors, total points will be counted.

The McGill line up will have Gloria Victor, Isobel Irwin, Roberta Tyler, Edith Aston, Janie Robb, and Pat Wallace, playing guard, and forwards Molly Camp, Marg

Engineering Faculty Cops Intramural Point Crown

Intramural director Howie Ryan announced officially yesterday that the Engineers have won the Interfaculty point race. At the moment points stand 1497 for the plumbers, 1286 for Physical Education, and 1140 for Medicine with three events remaining to be run off. In none of these events can the Physical Education crew make up enough to catch the Faculty of Engineering. The remaining sports on the Intramural program are a Squash and a Badminton tournament both of which are now in progress, and a Hockey final. No points will be awarded for this game which will take place Friday 12:30 on the McTavish Street Rinks. The Plumbers after taking the "B" Intramural League title challenged the "A" winners, Phys Ed. to a game which although not recognized by the Intramural office will take the form of a McGill Championship battle.

Since neither faculty was concerned with the Intramural Bowling title played off yesterday, the standings will remain relatively the same until the end of the year. So the Engineers under Intramural Council Representative Hutchinson have taken the Interfaculty Athletic crown in its first year of competition. The Med men led the field early in the year mainly on the basis of points piled up in Touch Football competition. However with the opening of the Floor Hockey season the Engineers began to amass points, one of their teams taking a championship there, while

Bell Memorial Trophy To Be Awarded Sanderson Before Queens' Game

McGill's Hockey Redmen will close out their CIAU schedule comes Friday eve, March the 10th. The game will have the cellar at stake, as the Queen's Golden Gaels are just two points behind the third-place McGillians, who have won their two games from the Chouinard-coached crew.

The game might have an unusual twist to it. As the standings cannot be affected in any way whatsoever, coach Dave Campbell is trying to reach an agreement with Queen's, whereby extra players can be used, regardless of whether they are freshmen or not. In this way Dave will be able to play some of the Intermediates who are freshmen, and some other players who should be playing hockey for some McGill team but are still freshmen and didn't bother making the effort. Likely this will mean that such men as Dorlon, Cave, Quain and many others will don skates for the Redmen against Queen's.

Coach Gene Chouinard will likely have the same lineup as in the game that saw his boys lose 3-2 last Friday to the first-place Toronto Blues. From all accounts of the game, the Queen's squad are an improved bunch and seemed to have gained confidence since their last meeting with the Redmen in Kingston.

The reliable Norm Urie will start between the pipes for the Gaels. Norm turned in a sensational performance against the Blues and will be ready to do battle against our Redmen. Norm Rogers and Gerry Wager will start on the defence with the teams most potent duo of Murray, McArthur and Hews opposing Clan Campbell's starting line of Brian O'Neill, Harry Irving and the leading scorer of the team, Rock Robillard. The line of Murphy, Gene "Speed" Robillard, and Len Kent will square away against Puro, Robertson and McKelvy, while McGill's Andrew, Taylor and "Spud" Russell will do battle against Gordon, Harley and Whitelaw. Wemp and Sly completes the Gael defence.

McGill will start Bob MacLellan in the nets. The big boy has been going great guns and goalied another great game in Toronto. Ruba

CORRECTION

The Helline Club announces that the time of Prof. Kilbansky's lecture on Friday, March 3, is 8:30 p.m., and not 7 p.m., as was previously reported. The locale remains unchanged.

Zemel, Irish Reynolds, Dawson Tilley and Sandy "Bell Trophy" Sanderson will start on defence. Before the game Sandy Sanderson will be presented with the Dr. Bobby Bell Trophy. The trophy is presented annually to the most valuable player of the team, and this is a double honor to Sanderson, as it is the first time it is being presented. Sandy has played very well this year, and in the words of coach Campbell, "the awarding of the Dr. Bobby Bell Trophy to Sanderson was a very worthy one, indeed."

So come out and support the team in this their last game of the 1949-50 season.

Winners of Four Straight Intramural Cage Crowns

By LEN WISSE

Aspirants to the Intramural basketball championship for next year can breathe easier now. The team that has held the crown for the past four years will graduate this year.

This team which started as Phys. Ed. 1 in 1946 has won four straight championships for a new Intramural record at McGill and in compiling this amazing record failed to win only three times over the four year span. They lost twice and were tied once.

The 1946-47 season saw the team go through their schedule of games undefeated. They downed a Commerce 2 team to take the crown for the first time.

The following year the Phys. Ed. squad suffered one defeat, that at the hands of the team they had beaten for the title the previous season. This Commerce 3 squad, to whom they lost, numbered among its ranks such top performers as Phil Weisberg, Tommy Bridel, Don Wolvin and Johnny Cneich. The "perennials" downed the Phys. Ed. 4 squad for the title. The former also walloped the Dawson Intramural champs 45-19.

In 1948-49 the squad won all their games except one in which it tied with Commerce 1 & 2. In the finals that year which were a two game total point affair it eked out a close win over Med. 2 by the margin of one point to take the title for the third straight time.

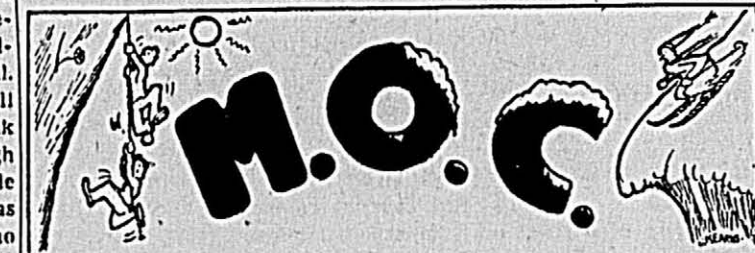

Again in the past year apparently through force of habit the squad again swept to the Intramural crown defeating Phys. Ed. 3 47-36 after completing an undefeated season.

THE TEAMS

The boys on the teams during the years have come from practically all parts of the country - from Nova Scotia to Saskatchewan and ranged in age from 16 to 30.

The team has been coached for the past two years by Bud Fraser, a classmate who has starred at centre for the senior cage Redmen for the last four seasons.

Tallest man on the squad is Al Wheller at 6 feet 4 with Flip Flewelling next at 6 feet 2 inches.

Sunday found M.O.C.ers skiing on a variety of slopes and trails in the Laurentians. Downhillers were active at Christville, Mont Gabriel, and St. Sauveur, while a bunch of cross-country skiers laid out a trail down the Maple Leaf from Ste. Agathe, for next Sunday's forty mile relay race. Another small group wandered off from the main trail, and spent an unhappy day bushwhacking through the wilderness. The main cross-country trip left Val Morin under the direction of Mr. Van Wagner, and spent a chilly day skiing over to the wind-swept slopes of Mount Loup Garou. A first year Arts student, newly landed from Greece, and on skis for only the sixth time in his life, skied thirteen miles on Sunday without noticeable difficulty, and was deeply impressed by the wonderful views of the Laurentians visible from certain parts of the Maple Leaf Trail. Another trip will take place this week-end. Skiers should take the 8:00 a.m. Sunday train from Windsor Station, to Shawbridge.

From now until the end of the snow, M.O.C. will be out on a cross-country trail every Sunday without fail. Anyone interested in the week-end destination, or curious about what the M.O.C. does on these trips, should phone John Bishop at FI. 7504 for "gen." M.O.C.'s ski house at Shawbridge will be open until the end of April.

For members, and free ski instruction will be given every Sunday, while the snow lasts.

Nominations for next year's executive are now being made, and will be ratified or amended at a meeting of the General Council at the Westmount Y.M.C.A. on March 9th.

Square dancing is unfortunately through for the rest of the year. The P.A. system which the M.O.C. had previously borrowed, has been sold, and money for a new one is yet to be raised.

Last week-end's trip to Lac Beauport was a great success. Skiing conditions were perfect, and two very educational evenings were spent in the notorious haunts of Quebec City. March 10-12 three boys and three girls are to represent M.O.C. at the Dartmouth invitation ski meet. Volunteers are needed. Ability to ski is preferred. Transportation will be provided. The week-end is primarily a social one. Phone Peter Candy, LA. 4861.

Presentation of Ibsen's 'Ghosts' Mar. 7-11

"ONE'S CONSCIENCE IS NOT ALWAYS AS CLEAR AS IT MIGHT BE!" concludes George Lukides, as Engstrand, when he tries (above) to pacify stern Pastor Manders, in a crucial scene from the forthcoming Arena Wing production of "Ghosts." Manders will be played by Trevor Groves. The tragedy, based on the violent consequences of inherited madness caused by venereal disease, is being produced by the Arts & Science Undergraduate Society, and will be presented by the Arena Wing of the McGill Players Club on March 7-11 in the Union Ballroom.

Production Will Compete In Quebec Drama Festival

Arena Wing's production of Ibsen's "Ghosts" will compete in the Quebec Regional Drama Festival, Austin Caverhill, president of the McGill Players' Club, announced yesterday. This will be the first time in the Festival's history that an arena production will have taken part.

All productions will be judged by Maxwell Wray, who has been connected with repertory companies in England and France for the last twenty years. He was responsible for bringing Greer Garson before the public eye, and set her on the road to fame as an actress in England and Hollywood. Mr. Wray has also acted as adjudicator for a great many British Drama League Festivals.

Arena Award Last Year
Last year the Players' Club entered the Festival with a production of "Hell Out There," and the play's leading lady Elizabeth Sifton, won the award for the best female performance.

McGill students and the general public will have a chance to see the arena version of this controversial play "Ghosts" before the Festival; for it opens in the Union Ballroom next Tuesday and will run from Tuesday, March 7 to Saturday, March 11. Tickets for this play cost $1.00 and are available at the Union Ticket Office and the Tuck Shop. Students are advised to get their tickets early as the Ballroom will only seat 320 people at a performance of this sort.

"Ghosts" is the second arena production of a full-length play to have been staged in Montreal. Last year the Arena Wing of the Players' Club was founded by Eugene Jousse, and their production of "Thunder Rock" was enthusiastically received both by the critics and public.

The play is directed by Norma Springford, permanent production manager of the Open Air Playhouse Inc., who stated that when "Ghosts" was first presented in London towards the end of the last century, it was an immediate sensation, and it has lost none of its drama and controversial quality with the passing of the years.

Emotions Affect Audience
At each performance of "Ghosts" the audience will occupy seats that entirely surround the acting area, and which are tiered upwards. No person in the audience will be more than 32 feet away from the "stage," and many will have their noses right into the very business of the play. Last year the critics pointed out that it was impossible for anyone not to be affected by the emotions portrayed by the actors, as they felt so drawn into the play, that they personally shared in the events being acted out.

Lighting for the production has been designed by Bill Springford, technical director of the Open Air Playhouse. The stage manager of the production is Austin Caverhill. Acting in the production are: Sheila Rogers, Dorothy White, Tre-

NORMA SPRINGFORD, director of the coming production of Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts."

Concert by Choral Society on Mar. 21

March 21, the first day of spring, has been announced as the date of the Choral Society's second concert this year.

Although the society only schedules two large concerts yearly—"Sing at Christmas" and "Spring Song"—this year, smaller groups from the society have sung at three other campus functions—the Carnival Cabaret at the University of Montreal, the Goodwill Weekend at Laval University, and tonight a group of sixty will sing at the SEC banquet.

While in Quebec last weekend, they received very favourable comment from the press; one paper classed them as "meritait de figurer au rang des meilleurs choeurs."

Program

Departing from programs of previous years, the Choral Society will present four major works instead of many shorter songs. Numbers being presented are Brahms' "Song of Destiny," a modern setting of an old ballad—"Earl Haldan's Daughter," "Light Divine" from Cavalleria Rusticana by Mascagni, and Bach's "Peasant Cantata."

The "Song of Destiny" is founded on a poem by Friedrich Holderlin. It contrasts the happy state of the departed with the tormented existence of the living. To this basic theme Brahms has added an instrumental postlude which repeating with slight change the tranquil opening, suggests that living humanity will ultimately reach the desired condition of bliss.

One of the choruses included in the "Peasant Cantata" is "Spring Comes Laughing" which will be remembered by those who attended last year's concert. In this same work, which deals with the rejoicing of a group of villagers, and their congratulations and wishes to their new lord and his wife, are two solo parts. These will be sung by Shirley Sproule, soprano, and Ferguson MacKenzie, bass. Both are students of the Music Faculty.

As in past years, the society's conductor at this concert will be Mr. Gifford Mitchell, Mus. Bac., and the accompanist Miss Doris Killam.

Guest

Guest artist of the society a "Spring Song" will be violinist Spiro Stamos. A second year music at McGill, Stamos accompanied the Choral Society to Quebec last weekend where he appeared as guest at the society's concert at Laval.

Tickets

Tickets for the concert, which will be held in the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium, are priced at 75 cents per person and may be secured at the Union Tuck Shop, or from any members of the society. "Tickets are selling quickly," said president Bert McGee last night. "I would advise everyone to buy their tickets early, so as not to be disappointed as many were at Christmas in not being able to secure them."
